description

The Split extendable table designed by Ron Arad in 1990 for Poltrona was one of the first items not self-produced by the English designer. Out of production for many years, it was reinserted in the catalogue in 2012, in the context of the program of reissued pieces of Centro Studi Poltrona. The top made with slats of various types of wood makes it possible to alter the size. It features elegant arched legs in brushes steel, giving the table an original sculptural dimension.
